Description

Asarum is noted for its great silver-splashed, dark green foliage that brightens any shady garden and may remain evergreen in mild winters. Large glossy heart-shaped foliage conceals unusual dark brown and purple 2" flowers tucked under the foliage in early spring. A showy, vigorous groundcover for shade. Asarum Spondens will spread with underground rhizomes. Thick leathery foliage makes a great ground cover in woodland and rock gardens. They will mound to a more lush appearance if planted near sidewalks or a barrier to restrict its spread.
