

Heuchera villosa x. v.
Cajun Fire
Coral Bells (NATIVE)

Price : $18.00

Price includes 6% MD sales tax

Exposure Full Sun, Part Shade

Height 14"

Spread 12" - 24"

Spacing 15"

Bloom Color White

Bloom time Summer

Deer Resistant Yes

USDA Hardiness Zone 4 - 9

Description

Changing colors with the seasons, Heuchera 'Cajun Fire' (Coral Bells) is a medium-sized evergreen perennial forming a dense, rounded mound of lobed leaves that emerge red in spring, turn deep purple-black in summer before changing to maroon in the fall. The leaves are also somewhat oversized for a plant this size, which really helps to accentuate their texture. Blooming from late spring to fall, masses of small, bell-shaped, white flowers appear on 18" slender stems above the foliage. It is attractive to bees, butterflies, and hummingbirds and is often ignored by deer. Fast-growing, this dazzling Heuchera combines extremely well with a wide range of colors and helps create wonderful plant combinations as mass plantings, rock gardens, borders, ground cover and containers.