Description

This selection of dwarf Crapemyrtle has a petite habit. The glossy foliage is dark mocha/green with burgundy veining. For most of the summer, this shrub can be admired for its attractive foliage, but starting in late summer, glossy coppery red buds open to pure white flowers. These flower clusters look like the foam that covers a latte drink—a perfect flowery finish to the summer season. Attractive green seed pods follow the flowering performance. It is perfect as a shrub border, corner planting or containers.
