Description

This Monarda is a vigorous form of bradburiana. It is a short plant to just 24" with beautiful, tubular, two-lipped, pinkish to whitish, purple-spotted flowers in the classic bee balm clusters. The flower heads are subtended by a whorl of showy, purple-tinged leafy bracts. The aromatic foliage emerges a rich burgundy-wine color and matures to green. The flowers appear in June followed by purple seed heads. It prefers a well drained soil in full sun to light shade. It attracts butterflies, hummingbirds and other pollinators.
